Performance Optimization of the High Speed Distributed Packet Switching Local Computer Network

Ibrahim ElEmary

Abstract

In this paper, we present and describe the topology and structure of the high speed distributed packet switching local computer network under P-persistent CSMA/CD as access protocol for the communication stations. Also, we discuss and analyze performance optimization of this network based on some analytical treatment to the applied access protocol.